A Kentucky man is being held on a $1 million bond and facing charges that include attempted murder of an Indiana State Police officer, aggravated battery and criminal recklessness in connection with an early morning standoff and active shooter call Saturday at an eastern Jefferson County home.

Wade Ross Roark, 59, of Manchester, Kentucky, fired upon and struck ISP Master Trooper Joseph Livers, a SWAT Team member from Batesville, in the legs near the end of a five-hour standoff with police at the home of his brother-in-law, Garry Arig, 8273 E. S.R. 56, Madison, and Alig's family just east of Splinters Ridge Road near Brooksburg.

Police responded to the home shortly after 2 a.m. Saturday after Jefferson County Central Dispatch received a 9-1-1 call that other family members were holed up in a locked upstairs bedroom for their safety and Roark was in the basement shooting a handgun up into the basement ceiling and the first floor.

Roark appeared for an initial hearing before Jefferson County Circuit Judge D.J. Mote Monday with the judge reading the charges, explaining the penalties Roark might face if convicted, and appointing a public defender to represent Roark in the case. Roark told Mote he was living on disability and had been unemployed "since the '90s."

Mote explained that Roark faced 20 to 40 years in prison on the attempted murder charge, a Level 1 felony; 3 to 16 years on one aggravated battery charge, a Level 3 felony; and 1 to 6 years on a second aggravated battery charge and a criminal recklessness charge, both Level 5 felonies. He could also face up to a $10,000 fine on each charge.

Roark had been held in the Jefferson County Jail on a $1 million cash bond since his arrest Saturday and Mote extended that bond while entering a "not guilty" plea on

Cummins to reduce global workforce by 2,000; expects turndown in 2020

By ANDY EAST
(Columbus) The Republic

Cummins Inc. has announced that it plans to reduce its global workforce by around 2,000 employees, or 3%, due to declining revenue leading into what company officials believe will be a downturn in business next year.

On Friday, Cummins officials said the company has done "a number of things to reduce spending" — including offering voluntary retirement packages in the United States and United Kingdom and aligning production with demand at manufacturing facilities — but will still need to make reductions in workforce to weather a downturn in 2020.

The job cuts, which are expected to be completed by the end of March, would affect "exempt," or salary employees, said Jon Mills, Cummins corporate spokesman.

"Unfortunately, we have to reduce headcount by about 2,000 worldwide," Mills said Friday. "This is difficult. This is something we don't take lightly. This is something we have to do to navigate the downturn."

Tony Satterthwaite, Cummins president and COO, told market analysts Thursday during a presentation at the New York Stock Exchange that the company has "already initiated a number of actions" that he characterized as a "comprehensive company-wide approach" to reduce structural costs by $250 million to $300 million in 2020 and to "improve the overall health of the company and prepare us better for when

A 30-year-old man, John Douglas Birch, was killed Saturday morning when his vehicle hit a tree on State Road 56 near the south entrance to Clifty Falls State Park.

A news release from Chief Deputy Josh Taylor of the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department said officers went to the scene near the intersection of Canyon Road about 7:45 a.m. Their initial investigation concluded Birch's vehicle left the roadway and collided with a tree. He was dead at the scene. S.R. 56 was closed to traffic for three hours as officers investigated the crash.

Arrangements for Birch, of Vevay, Indiana, will be announced by the Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre in Madison.

Indianapolis, Greenfield manufacturers to cut 300 jobs

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — Cutbacks at two factories are costing nearly 300 workers their jobs. Indianapolis-based apparel maker Motionwear has notified state officials it plans to permanently close its production facilities early next year and eliminate almost 150 jobs. The company, which makes dance leotards, gymnastics apparel and cheer uniforms, hasn't given a reason for the closing decision. Power tools maker Stanley Black & Decker is planning to permanently lay off about 140 workers from its factory in Greenfield, about 20 miles east of Indianapolis. The Connecticut-based company said the job cuts will take effect by early February as it consolidates production to fewer facilities.

$50M to fight poverty in Lilly investment

INDIANAPOLIS — The Lilly Endowment Inc. is investing up to $50 million to help low-income residents in Indiana's capital move up the economic ladder. The foundation said the funding will boost programs and projects aimed at improving residents' economic footing and move them toward self-sufficiency. The Indianapolis Business Journal reported the endowment is soliciting proposals from not-for-profit groups, including human service agencies, neighborhood groups and churches. They and other groups are being encouraged to collaborate with each other or companies and governmental agencies on their efforts. The Enhancing Opportunity in Indianapolis grants will range from $50,000 to $10 million. Rob Smith is a senior vice president with the endowment.

Lawmakers support tobacco use age hike

INDIANAPOLIS — Lawmakers are voicing support for raising the state's legal age to buy tobacco and vaping products. Republican House Speaker Brian Bosma said Monday that he supports raising the age from 18 to 21, along with the majority of the House Republican caucus. Bosma and others who previously blocked the move said that people could serve in the military, vote and buy a gun at the age of 18. He also noted an increase in youth vaping and related deaths and illnesses. Bosma said he changed his mind because the armed services and veterans' groups support the age change. He also mentioned that it might also be time for the state to consider banning or limiting flavored e-liquids, which is often is viewed as one of the biggest attractions for teen vaping. But no concrete plan is in place. Lawmakers are also pushing to raise taxes on tobacco products to try to curb use. Republican Senate President Pro Tem Rodric Bray supports the measures but said moves on tax increases likely won't happen this session.

Man gets 87 years in fatal shooting of barber

FORT WAYNE — A Fort Wayne man convicted of fatally shooting a barber he had argued with during a haircut has been sentenced to more than 87 years in prison. An Allen County judge sentenced 34-year-old James L. Dodson Jr. on Monday to the maximum term of 87 1/2 years allowed under his murder and criminal recklessness convictions. He was convicted in the April 9 killing of 46-year-old Michael LoVett Jr. outside his Fort Wayne barbershop. Authorities said Dodson was getting a haircut there when he got into an argument with LoVett and left before his haircut was finished. Dodson later returned and shot LoVett several times. He told a judge Monday that LoVett had provoked the attack by pulling a gun. Dodson was arrested in May by federal agents in northeastern Mississippi.

Plans to close 2 high schools

HAMMOND— The head of school district said it must close two high schools to avoid the possibility of a state takeover. A plan approved by the Hammond School Board closes Clark and Gavit high schools following the 2020-2021 school year to save $36 million over five years. About 1,850 students each would attend Morton High School and a new school under construction next to the current Hammond High School. The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported district Supt. Scott Miller said he doesn't want a state-picked private company running its schools like in Gary and Muncie after they both faced a financial crisis. Miller said the district's enrollment has fallen by nearly half to about 12,000 students over the past 50 years while continuing with four high schools.

5 years for threat to bomb courthouse

LAFAYETTE — A man who threatened to bomb a courthouse, prompting the building's evacuation, has been sentenced to five years in prison. A special judge sentenced Michael Batterin, 48, Friday after detailing the lengthy criminal history he had amassed before he threatened to bomb the Tippecanoe County Courthouse in Lafayette. Battering pleaded guilty last month to intimidation and false informing. The Journal & Courier reported he also pleaded guilty to fraud for using a stolen credit card to buy the cellphone he used to make the threat. Battering claimed he was high on meth and heroin when he called in the April 11 bomb threat, spurring the courthouse's evacuation. Police found no bombs in the building. Battering told the court he's "seriously sorry for upsetting everybody's lives that day."

STATE BRIEFS

Adriana Saucedo, 27, of Portage was found dead Thursday evening after she was reported missing. Portage police say she allegedly met with a Gary teen to buy a small amount of marijuana and was picked up from her home in "a pre-arranged purchase." ### Program to help teens quit tobacco offered FRANKFORT — Health officials are offering help for teenagers who want to quit using tobacco products, including smoking and vaping. The service is free and can be reached by calling or texting (855) 891-9989. The program, called "My Life, My Quit," connects the teen to a "quit coach" who will provide free and confidential support. Each teen can get five sessions of personalized support through texting, phone or online chat. Elizabeth Anderson-Hoagland of the Kentucky Department for Public Health said it can be hard for young people to find help quitting tobacco products but that such assistance can be the key to success. The program is operated by National Jewish Health, which also operates Quit Now Kentucky and the toll-free number (800) QUIT-NOW for Kentuckians of all ages.

6 counties picked for post-election audits

FRANKFORT — The attorney general's office says six counties have been chosen for post-general election audits. Assistant Deputy Attorney General Michael Wright said the counties selected at random were Boyle, Gallatin, Henderson, Kenton, Oldham and Powell. Kentucky's general election was Nov. 5. The attorney general's office said the counties' selection doesn't imply irregularities are suspected. Under the law, the attorney general is required to conduct post-election audits in no fewer than 5% of Kentucky's counties after each primary and general election. The audits include checking election forms and interviewing county officials to ensure a fair and equitable election process. The office also provides an Election Law Violation hotline — 800-328-VOTE (8683) — throughout the year and has investigators stationed throughout the state on Election Day to respond to complaints quickly.

Newspaper wins record appeal; police sue paper

LOUISVILLE — A police department is suing a newspaper in an attempt to avoid releasing investigative records into its defunct youth program, where two officers were convicted of sexually abusing minors. The Courier Journal reported it's being sued by Louisville Metro police, despite a state attorney general's ruling that the department violated state law by denying the newspaper's records request. The lawsuit said the department didn't violate Kentucky's open records law because it had turned the records over to the FBI and didn't possess them anymore. But the attorney general's office found during the denial's appeal that the department still had access to those records.

Calls about gas smell before explosion

CAMPTON — Kentucky officials received calls complaining about the smell of gas before an explosion that killed two people at a home near the rural community of Campton on Saturday. Wolf County Emergency Management Director Marcus Stephens told WLEX-TV that someone at the home called twice about a gas smell coming from the basement. Stephens said gas company employees responded to the home, but it is unclear what they determined. He wasn't able to give an exact time line of events. After the explosion and fire, Kentucky State Police said they found two bodies in the basement. Another four people were injured.

Senior chosen for Thanksgiving parade

OWENSBORO — A Kentucky high school senior has been chosen to play tuba with the Great American Marching Band in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. The Owensboro Messenger-Inquirer reports Trent Woolard had to go through a strenuous audition process that began in March. The 18 year old lives in Owensboro and is a student at Daviess County High School. He plans to attend the University of Kentucky next fall. The marching band features 185 musicians and 40 flag bearers. It is made up of students from across the U.S. According to the parade website, 3.5 million people are expected to attend with more than 50 million watching on television. Woolard says it is an honor to be chosen for a "once in a lifetime opportunity."

New federal wildlife refuge established

HENDERSON — U.S. Fish and Wildlife officials along with political leaders have announced the establishment of a new national wildlife refuge in western Kentucky. The Green River National Wildlife Refuge was established with the acquisition of a 10-acre parcel donated by the Southern Conservation Corp. The tract in Henderson is the first part of what's expected to be a 24,000-acre refuge. Along with Clarks River National Wildlife Refuge, it is one of only two refuges located fully in the state. A ceremony on Friday was attended by Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell and Congressman James Comer. McConnell secured a legislative measure directing the Department of the Interior to establish the new site. The refuge will help protect and manage wetlands and bottomland forest and connect natural corridors that allow wildlife to move freely.

Dippin' Dots blast injures 4

PADUCAH — Authorities say an explosion at the Dippin' Dots production facility has injured four people. Dippin' Dots CEO Scott Fischer said the explosion occurred in a production area around 10 p.m. Friday evening. Fischer said in a news release that it would be premature to comment on the cause of the blast. Paducah city spokeswoman Pam Spencer said the plant had a nitrogen leak, but it was unclear whether that leak caused the explosion or happened afterward. Nitrogen is used to flash-freeze Dippin' Dots novelty ice cream. The four people injured were hospitalized. WPSD-TV reported that one of the injured workers was released from the hospital early Saturday morning. At one point employees were not being allowed inside the building after the incident because the oxygen level was too low, the power was shut off and smoke remained inside.

‘Never felt so misunderstood,’ Daniels says

By DAVE BANGERT
(Lafayette) Journal and Courier

WEST LAFAYETTE – As social media hashtags piled up and he was called out by faculty on the University Senate late last week for referring to a black scholar as “one of the rarest creatures in America” and the “rarest phenomenon,” Purdue President Mitch Daniels said he felt his comments were being treated unfairly.

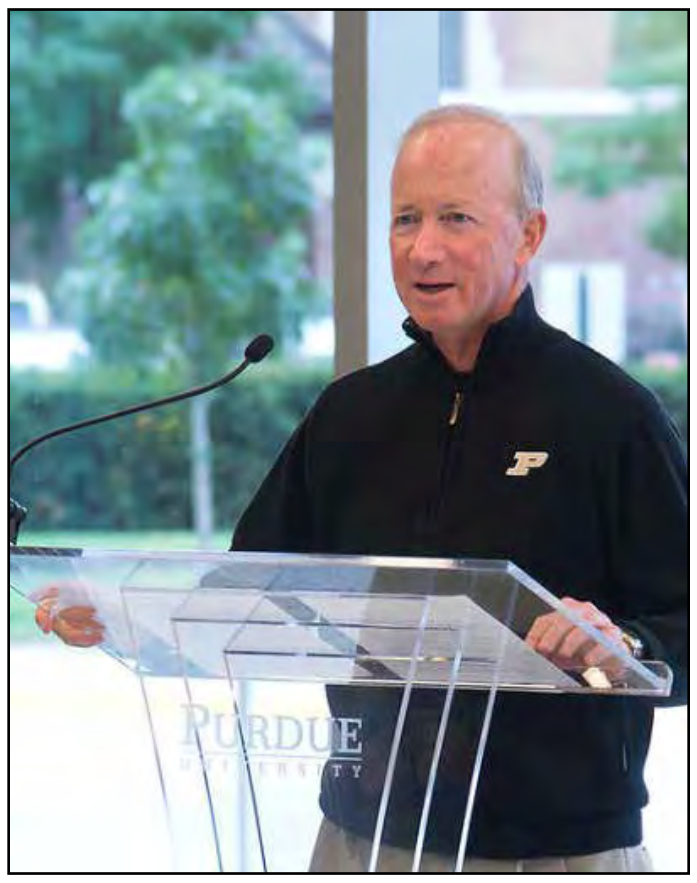
“I’ve never felt so misunderstood before,” Daniels told the Journal & Courier, after comments he made in an impromptu conversation with students Wednesday night in Pfendler Hall spread across campus.

“I was saying that, this very week, we’re working on a superstar who happens to be African American,” Daniels said. “Extraordinarily rare talent and one of our target populations. That’s what I said. And to have that stood on its head as an indifference to diversity, or worse, it hurts. That’s all I’ll say.”

What students heard that night – as captured by reporting and audio from reporters at The Exponent, Purdue’s independent student newspaper – wound up in exhausted exchanges about campus life on social media, punctuated with the hashtag #IAmNotACreature.

And faculty on the University Senate’s Equity and Diversity Committee followed up with a statement saying that “the idea that there is a scarcity of leading African American scholars is simply not true.” The faculty committee called for training for university personnel to understand what the professors called “problematic” language from Daniels.

“To all Purdue students who have experienced persistent dehumanizing comments in their lives, we want you to know that we acknowledge your frustration and support you,” a statement released Friday by Audrey Ruple, chair of the Equity and Diversity Committee, read.



“I’m saying what hundreds of people have said,” Daniels said. “It’s a bit ironic, given all this, that this week, I was in the process of working on (a professor) that’s just stellar, quite apart from ethnicity. I mean, that was my point,” said Purdue University President Mitch Daniels, who is pictured above at a campus event last year. (Photo from Purdue University)

“Regardless of intent, referring to people of color as anything less than human is tied to our country’s history of oppression and discrimination,” the faculty committee’s statement said. “We do believe that … this was a mistake. However, it is the type of mistake that can be avoided with training to increase one’s understanding of the concepts of privilege and power dynamics.”

The exchange between students happened Wednesday night, outside a Purdue Student Government meeting. That night, Daniels had been pressed by students about his administration’s response after a Purdue student had been denied the sale of cold medicine because a clerk and a manager at an off-campus CVS Pharmacy across from Mackey Arena had rejected his Puerto Rican driver’s license as sufficient ID.

That incident, in late October, led to student protests demanding that Daniels address concerns of minority students.

As reported by the Exponent, several students asked Daniels to continue the conversation in one of Pfendler’s hallways. The question they posed, as posted in a recording by the Exponent, looked to distill Daniels’ contention that there was always room for improvement on the diversity front: What specifically was the university doing?

Daniels pointed to the Purdue Polytechnic high schools, two charter schools in the Indianapolis Public Schools district. He said a third Purdue-led high school is in the works.

“Why? Because we cannot find enough minority students. The school system in this state is not producing them,” Daniels said that night. “It’s my initiative. … We are building our own pipeline. That’s one thing we can do.”

He talked about recruiting students, including making personal calls during enrollment season to personally encourage minority students to choose Purdue.

“Everybody’s chasing the same small pool,” Daniels told the students. “You are exceptional students, or you wouldn’t be here. And you all had other choices.”

And, in the part that wound up bringing headlines on campus, Daniels talked about recruiting minority faculty.

“At the end of this week, I’ll be recruiting one of the rarest creatures in America – a leading, I mean a really leading, African-American scholar,” Daniels said that night.

The moment was met with murmurs. D’Yan Berry, president of the Black Student Union, can be heard on the recording: “Creatures? Come on.”

“It’s a figure of speech. You must have taken some, you know, literature,” Daniels responded. “Let me say, rarest birds. Rarest phenomenon.”

The backlash came quickly, including an extended post from Berry that was still picking up steam on Twitter heading into the weekend. Part of Berry’s post: “I am disappointed but not at all surprised by his reference – in front of a group of mostly black, minority students – to black students as creatures. It afflicts me that this is how he speaks even when ‘boasting’ on students.”

On Friday, Daniels said he believed he was being judged on “one word out of an hour” as he spoke about the recruiting minority faculty. At Purdue, 161 of 1,931 – or 8.3% – tenured or tenure track professors were categorized as underrepresented minorities in 2018, according to data published online by the university. That compares to 117 or 1,849 – or 6.3 percent – in the same category in 2013, the year Daniels arrived on campus.

“I’m saying what hundreds of people have said,” Daniels said. “It’s a bit ironic, given all this, that this week, I was in the process of working on (a professor) that’s just stellar, quite apart from ethnicity. I mean, that was my point. They’re all long shots, because everyone wants them on their campuses. I feel very passionate about that.”

Could Daniels have avoided Wednesday night’s fallout by speaking up about the CVS incident from the start?

“I accept that some folks think that was a misjudgment,” Daniels said.

CVS apologized to José Guzman Payano, a Purdue junior studying engineering, in a case that wound up getting national coverage. CVS officials, who said they were reviewing ID policies with all of its stores, also came to campus to talk with students about what happened. But John Gates, Purdue’s vice provost for diversity and inclusion, told students during a meeting at the Latino Cultural Center a week after that “the university is unlikely to make a statement, in any way.”

IU provost condemns prof’s tweets

By MICHAEL RESCHKE
(Bloomington) Herald-Times

An Indiana University dean and the provost of the Bloomington campus have condemned the tweets of a faculty member but do not plan to fire him.

Provost Lauren Robel did not mince words in a letter addressed to members of the IU Kelley School of Business community.

“Professor Eric Rasmusen has, for many years, used his private social media accounts to disseminate his racist, sexist and homophobic views,” she wrote.

Robel provided summaries of Rasmusen’s tweets, writing that he believes:

• Women do not belong in the workplace, particularly academia.

• That gay men should not be permitted in academia either, because he believes they are promiscuous and unable to avoid abusing students.

• That he believes black students are generally unqualified to attend elite institutions, and are generally inferior academically to white students.

A voice mail left for Rasmusen was not returned by the deadline for this story.

Recently, a Twitter account with several hundred thousand followers addressed some of Rasmusen’s posts. Specifically, Rasmusen posted a link to an article titled “Are Women Destroying Academia? Probably,” written by Lance Welton. A screenshot shows the following quote from Rasmusen’s Twitter account accompanying the link to the article:

“geniuses are overwhelmingly male because they combine outlier IQ with moderately low Agreeableness and Moderately low Conscientiousness.”

The Twitter account @SheRatesDogs retweeted Rasmusen’s tweet Tuesday, commenting “Man you guys know I hate leaving names in, but this can’t continue being a thing.” Since then, various IU officials have been inundated with demands that Rasmusen be fired, according to Robel’s letter. But that’s not what IU officials plan to do.

“We cannot, nor would we, fire Professor Rasmusen for his posts as a private citizen, as vile and stupid as they are, because the First Amendment of the United States Constitution forbids us to do so,” Robel wrote. “That is not a close call.”

However, if Rasmusen acted upon some of his expressed views in the workplace — judging students or colleagues on the basis their gender, sexual orientation or race to their detriment — he would be in violation of the university’s nondiscrimination policy, according to Robel’s letter. Allegations of such conduct would be investigated. Chuck Carney, IU spokesman, said Wednesday he is not aware of any such evidence so far.

Considering Ramusen’s social media posts, Robel acknowledged students who are women, gay or of color might be concerned he would not give them a fair shake in his classes. The Kelley School is taking the following steps to address those concerns.

No student will be forced to take one of Rasmusen’s classes. The school will provide alternatives.

Rasmusen will use double-blind grading on assignments; if there are components of grading that cannot be subject to a double-blind procedure, the school will “have another faculty member ensure that the grades are not subject to Rasmusen’s prejudices.”

“If other steps are needed to protect our students or colleagues from bigoted actions, Indiana University will take them,” Robel wrote.

If there is any indication Rasmusen is in danger, the university will take actions to protect him, Carney said, noting that would be done for any IU faculty, student or staff member.

Rasmusen is a professor of business economics and public policy at the Kelley School, as well as an adjunct professor of economics in the IU College of Arts and Sciences. Rasmusen started working for IU in 1992. He has a bachelor’s and master’s degree from Yale University, as well as a Ph.D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His salary is slightly more than $198,000.

Bill Jenner

William Edward "Bill" Jenner, 77, of Madison, Indiana, died Thursday, Nov. 21, 2019, at King's Daughters' Health in Madison.

He was born Feb. 8, 1942, in Bedford, Indiana, to U.S. Senator William Ezra Jenner and Janet Patterson Cuthill Jenner. During his father's tenure in the United States Senate, the family divided time between Indiana and Washington D.C., where he received his early education. He graduated from Indiana University Law School in 1966, later serving as a law clerk to the Honorable Cale J. Holder, judge of the United States District Court, Southern District of Indiana. He established a longtime law practice in Madison in 1968, arguing cases in both state and federal courts, as well as serving as a deputy prosecuting attorney, attorney for the City of Madison and attorney for Madison Consolidated School Corporation.

He volunteered his time to several community causes, including the Western Fire Company No. 3, serving on the board of the Jefferson County Red Cross, the Cale J. He authored a book about his father's life in United States politics titled "Senator William Ezra Jenner of Indiana, Remembered By His Son" and thoroughly enjoyed his time researching and compiling that work. He enjoyed hunting and fishing with family and friends, cheering on the Washington Redskins, the Cincinnati Reds, and the Indiana University football team.

Survivors include his wife of 40 years, Anne Finnegan Jenner; sons Joe Jenner of Madison, Scott Lynch of Madison, Andy Lynch of Bloomington, Indiana, and Patrick Lynch of Madison; 12 grandchildren; his beloved dog, Buddy; and several nephews, a niece, and other relatives. He was expecting the birth of his first great-granddaughter in February 2020.

2019 record year for prescribed burns at national forest

By CAROL KUGLER
(Bloomington) Herald-Times

The U.S. Forest Service had a record number of prescribed burns in its Eastern Region this year, including in the Hoosier National Forest. (USFS / Courtesy photo)

Fighting fire with fire.

That's one of the reasons for prescribed burns, and this year has been a record year for those controlled fires in the Hoosier National Forest and other forests in the 20 states that make up the Eastern Region of the U.S. Forest Service.

About 5,300 acres in 18 areas of the Hoosier National Forest were burned in 2019 as part of the more than 237,000 acres of forest land burned throughout the eastern region, known as Region 9.

The prescribed burns not only reduce the "fuels" — downed trees, leaf litter, small shrubs and sapling and seedling trees — that can keep a fire burning, they reduce the number of invasive plants as well and provide a better chance for oak and hickory trees to flourish. The burns also help with seed production of native plants.

Some threatened and endangered plants and animals in the Hoosier National Forest are now growing, thriving, because of prescribed burns, according to Jeremy Kolaks, prescribed burn and fuels specialist with Indiana's national forest.

"There are natural communities that are only found in certain parts of the world and some occur in Indiana," he said, explaining the glades and barrens where they grow are dependent on fire to clear the area of encroaching vegetation.

After fire was introduced into some of those areas of the forest, species that hadn't been seen for years reappeared, Kolaks said. There are 47 species of insects that are rare or classified as "new to science" that exist only in some of these glades and barrens in Indiana or in isolated sites in nearby states.

Other species of insects find food on or near oak trees, which benefit from the fires. Oak trees can provide food and habitat for more than 500 species of insects, which in turn are food for birds, mammals, reptiles and amphibians throughout the Hoosier National Forest.

While improving the habitat for native insects, the burns also help slow or prevent outbreaks of pest insects and diseases that can attack and kill whole stands of native trees.

Maintaining the diverse landscape that has historically been part of Indiana takes dedication and days of hard work by not only the U.S. Forest Service staff at the Hoosier National Forest but also other government agencies, Forest Service staff from other states and The Nature Conservancy. The staff works closely with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to ensure threatened and endangered plants and animals are for the most part protected from the burns.

But even if a few animals die, Kolaks wants people to understand that controlled fires actually help most woodland and prairie species. He mentioned the endangered Indiana bat as well as the red bat and rattlesnakes as three species that benefit from prescribed burns. While a few individual animals may die, the insects, rodents and more open understory canopy in the forest will help those species thrive. In fact, both species of bats have been shown in numerous studies to prefer areas of the forest that have had prescribed burns.

"We look at the long-term benefits of managing the landscape," said Marion Mason, public affairs specialist with the Hoosier National Forest.

While 2019 was a record year for the Hoosier, Kolaks hopes the record won't last long. As he explained, historic records show that more than 500 years ago, Native Americans burned portions of forestland to open it up for agriculture, then oftentimes allowed it to regenerate back into woods. Those practices established the species of plants and animals that now live in Indiana and beyond.

While these prescribed burns are not used to clear land for agriculture, they do help reduce the risk of wildfires, which is especially important along the edges of the national forest where people live. Most residents may not remember the Georgia Fire that burned about 2,494 acres and destroyed homes in southwest Lawrence County or the Dutch Ridge Fire in 1952 that is thought to be the largest fire in Indiana. The Dutch Ridge Fire started near Bartlettsville and burned north to the Heltonville area and beyond.

At the beginning of the 21st century, the U.S. Forest Service fire plan included more prescribed burns to counteract the increasing wildfires mostly in the West and South. While wildfires are more rare in the eastern portions of the U.S., Kolaks said the consequences of such fires would be higher since more people live closer to national forest lands.

But those types of fires are still possible. Kolaks recalled the November 2016 fires that raged through the Great Smoky Mountain National Park that burned its way into Gatlinburg, killing 14 people and injuring 190 others.

"It happens so infrequently that we as humans tend to forget," Kolaks said.

Trooper injured saving life Friday, back on job Saturday

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

As Indiana State Police Sgt. Stephen Wheeles gathered information and issued statements on a standoff and active shooter situation in Jefferson County Saturday that left one of his fellow officers wounded, he did so with a right hand and arm bandaged from injuries sustained in his own run-in with danger a day earlier near Seymour.

Wheeles, the public information officer for the Versailles Post, was assisting another trooper at about 3 p.m. Friday with a reconstruction investigation of an accident that took place on Wednesday, when he heard a radio call related to an accident with possible injuries on SR 11 north of Seymour and started toward the accident scene.

The dispatch stated that a vehicle was in water and that a woman was trapped inside and that's just what Wheeles found when he pulled up just minutes later.

The accident was at S.R. 11 near County Road 800 East in Jackson County. Wheeles found a car partly submerged in water and sinking with a woman trapped inside.

Wheeles immediately went into the water to try to rescue the driver, Megan Elizabeth Ora Fleetwood, 23, of Jeffersonville, who was trapped inside. Once at the car, Wheeles was given a hammer by retired Seymour Fire Department Lt. Troy Nichalson and used the hammer to knock out the back window of the car and pull Fleetwood out of the vehicle.

During the rescue, Wheeles suffered injuries to his right hand and arm. Both Wheeles and Fleetwood were taken to Schneck Medical Center in Seymour for treatment. Indiana State Police was assisted at the scene by Seymour Police and Fire Departments and EMS.

It wasn't until Wheeles and Fleetwood had both been treated at the hospital that the two realized they already knew each other.

"Ms. Fleetwood and I actually knew each other prior to this incident," Wheeles said on his Twitter account Friday. "I did not recognize her at the scene and did not find out it was her until we were both at the hospital. I am thrilled she will be OK!!"

Wheeles' Facebook page and Twitter feed have been flooded with kind remarks thanking him for his service and wishing him a speedy recovery.

"For those who have asked, I am fine. Just some minor scrapes and soreness," Wheeles said on Facebook. "I'm just glad things worked out the way they did. Thanks for the messages I have received."

Roark's behalf. He set a pretrial date for 1 p.m. Feb. 5, 2020, and a jury trial date for 9 a.m. Feb. 25, 2020.

Roark appeared in court in an orange jail jumpsuit with his hands in cuffs and legs in shackles. His face was puffy and appeared bruised around his eyes. When asked to respond to the judge's questions, Roark seemed to want to explain the attempted murder charge only to be cut off by Mote, who reminded Roark there was time for that later and that Monday's hearing was to make sure he understood the charges that had been filed.

While being escorted from the courtroom after the hearing, Roark lifted his hands as far as his handcuffs would allow and waved to a couple seated in the courtroom. The woman said she was Roark's daughter, Luann Rodriguez, who had made the 180-mile trip from her home in Manchester, Kentucky, to attend the hearing.

"This is not like him. This is not my dad," Rodriguez said tearfully. "He's not a model citizen but this is not like him."

Roark's daughter said her father had suffered a mental breakdown about two years earlier and had been diagnosed as psychotic but she had no explanation for his actions Saturday. She said she has not spoken with her father since the incident.

"They won't let me see him," she noted.

A probable cause affidavit prepared by Indiana State Police Det. Brent Miller said Roark's brother-in-law, Garry Alig, who owns the property where the shooting occurred, told police Roark had been staying intermittently in a camper on the property and not in the residence where the incident took place.

Alig told police he was awakened early Saturday morning to a sound he thought was a gunshot. He went from his second floor bedroom to the first floor where a juvenile in the home told him the sound was Roark firing a gun in the basement. Alig went back upstairs and called 9-1-1 after Roark continued to discharge the firearm. Alig said he was "afraid to move family members down the stairs and outside the residence because he feared that Roark would hear their footsteps and shoot them through the first level floor." He told police Roark was known to carry a Rossi 9mm handgun and had used illicit drugs in the past although he was "unaware of any recent drug use."

The first officers responding to the call could hear rounds being fired in the basement. Madison Police Officer Brian Ashcraft made contact with the occupants upstairs, telling them to move to a bedroom door that had access to the exterior of the house. He then kicked in a door allowing a man, woman and three children to exit the residence.

After being told Roark was the shooter, Ashcraft made verbal contact and ordered Roark to exit the house on multiple occasions but Roark refused commands. Officers attempted to make visual contact by shining a flashlight through a basement window and Roark shined a light back at them.

Eventually, Roark told Ashcraft that he would like to speak to his ex-girlfriend Brenda but was unable to provide additional information other than the first name. The affidavit filed with the case said that during the conversation, Roark told Ashcraft that he was "going to kill a male subject identified as 'Chris,' as well as unspecified Hispanic men." Roark said he would not shoot the police, but indicated he was "going to shoot Chris and the Hispanic men."

Once Indiana State Police arrived, further communication was established with Roark and during the discussions, the affidavit said, Roark said the "DEA and the Mexican drug cartel were after him" and that he could hear people on the floor above him and had discharged his firearm numerous times into the ceiling and floor above him. Roark also told police he had been "awake for four days."

The affidavit said officers recognized that with such lack of sleep they might be dealing with a situation consistent with excessive use of methamphetamine.

Throughout the morning Roark discharged his firearm numerous times with several rounds penetrating the first level floor.

With the standoff continuing, the Indiana State Police Emergency Response Team was dispatched to the scene. Officers from the Indiana State Police-South Zone SWAT Team assembled outside the residence and determined that Roark was in an area of the basement comprised of stone-type material with an open area in the wall that allowed him visual access.

Shortly after daybreak, with SWAT officers positioned outside the home, Roark fired through the open area at Trooper Livers, striking him in the calf area of the left leg with the bullet lodging in his right knee. State Police returned fire and shortly thereafter Roark surrendered to police and was taken to jail.

Livers, an 18-year ISP veteran, was taken to King's daughters' Hospital in Madison where the attending physician indicated the path the bullet traveled was "extremely close to a major artery" in Livers' left leg. The officer was taken to University of Cincinnati Hospital for further treatment and surgical removal of the bullet.

State Police Sgt. Stephen Wheeles, public information officer for the Versailles Post, said Livers will likely require "significant recovery time" from the wound. He said he did not know if Roark also sustained injuries in the incident but that they would have had to have been minor since he was in jail and not a hospital.

State police continued to investigate the incident throughout Saturday afternoon and eventually determined that there were six occupants other than Roark in the house — including three juveniles — when Roark started firing rounds.

Police who interviewed Roark at the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, described him as "lucid" and speaking "with clarity about the incident."

Roark acknowledged that he knew there were other people in the residence when he first started firing bullets into the dwelling portion of the home — including two adults and three children — and he told police he heard footsteps above him and fired multiple shots through the first floor.

With regard to the shooting of the trooper, the affidavit said Roark said he "observed a human leg through a hole in the basement and said 'you (expletive deleted) want to get me, let's do it." Roark said he then fired a shot through the hole in the basement wall and missed but then fired again striking the person he could see.

Roark denied that he was aware that the person he had shot was a law enforcement officer, but did acknowledged that he was aware that law enforcement officers were present at the residence and he could see flashing lights from a police car from his vantage point in the basement.

Roark told police he had two magazines for his handgun and that he had shot enough rounds that he had to reload the magazines. He told police he was in a "state of anger" during the incident.

State Road 56 was closed to traffic for about 14 hours during the standoff and the investigation before re-opening shortly after 5 p.m. Troopers and other law enforcement continued to come and go throughout the morning and afternoon as more than two dozens official vehicles, including a SWAT truck, lined the roadway near the property east of Brooksburg and across S.R. 56 from the Hi-Acres Campground and bordering the Splinter Ridge Fish & Wildlife Area and Morris Chapel Cemetery.

volumes come back."

"We have adjusted for reduction to demand at our manufacturing facilities, cutting contingent labor, flexing down overall, reducing shifts, reducing overtime," Satterthwaite said during the presentation. "We're flexing all discretionary costs down pretty broadly."

Cummins officials told market analysts on Thursday that they are prepared for weakening truck markets in North America and India in 2020, as well as other markets that they believe have peaked, declined or may weaken next year, including the North America oil and gas market and the China construction market.

"Most of the markets in which we participate have either peaked or are on their way down," Satterthwaite said during the presentation.

However, the downturn next year could be sharper than some of the previous cyclical downturns the company has gone through, Mills said.

Last month, Cummins announced that its third-quarter revenues were nearly $5.8 billion, a decline from the more than $5.9 billion the company generated during the same July-September quarter in 2018.

Lower demand for trucks and construction equipment drove most of the decline. Sales in North America were flat while international revenues fell 8%, Cummins said.

Cummins President and CEO Tom Linebarger acknowledged during the presentation on Thursday that 2020 would likely be a difficult year for the company, but reiterated that Cummins has gone through similar cyclical downturns in the past and will remain committed to investing in technology — including electrification, fuel cell and hydrogen production technology — through the downturn to strengthen the company's position when the market kicks back up.

Rough 3rd quarter ruins Madison's upset chances

3A No. 2 Salem outscores Cubs 21-4 to pull away for win

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

Inconsistency has plagued Madison's girls basketball all season and nowhere more evident than on Saturday.

Madison outscored Class 3A No. 2 Salem by seven over the first, second and fourth quarters, but a disastrous third quarter proved to be the difference as the Lions walked away with a 68-59 win at Salm Gym.

The Cubs (3-2) committed eight turnovers in the decisive third and were outscored 21-4 over that stretch. For Madison coach Sonja Bowyer, the game was both a sign of how far her team has come, and how far it still has to go.

"As I told them, three of the four quarters we proved that we can play with, if not better, than the second team in the state," Bowyer said. "They proved how good they can be and that's a good thing. But we still have to make up for those mental errors."

After a back-and-forth first quarter that saw Salem take a 15-13 lead after eight minutes, Madison dominated the second, using a patient approach on offense and an aggressive defense to eventually build a seven-point lead and take a 32-26 lead into halftime.

But all of that momentum was squandered in the third quarter. Rushing on offense led to unforced turnovers and over-aggressiveness on defense allowed Salem shooters wide-open shots from the outside.

The result was a 21-4 rout by the Lions who hit four 3-pointers in the quarter and seemingly turned every Madison miscue into points.

Salem (8-0) took a 47-36 lead into the fourth period and led by as many as 14 (57-43) with 4:03 to play when the Cubs began chipping away to get within one basket of making the game interesting in the end.

Jade Nutley started the comeback with a basket and Lundun Perry and Daesja Jay each drilled 3-pointers as the Cubs pulled to within nine. A turnover led to a Taylor Lynch basket and Madison cut the lead to 60-53 with 1:39 to go.

No. 1/2 Mount Union flexes muscles in rout of Hanover

Panthers held to just 80 yards in NCAA D-III loss

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

ALLIANCE, Ohio — Hanover football already knew the challenge that awaited against No. 1/2 Mount Union in Saturday's NCAA Division III first round playoff game. Adding in injuries that didn't allow three all-conference first team selections to play in the game just made the challenge even more difficult for the Panthers.

In the end, Mount Union did what was expected of a top-ranked team and group that has appeared in 16 of the last 17 national championship games. The Purple Raiders flexed their muscle for 60 minutes despite the Panthers' best efforts, running away with a 65-14 victory at Mount Union Stadium.

"That's the best offense I've ever seen and Mount Union certainly is something special to watch," Hanover head coach Matt Theobald said. "Things didn't go in our favor and it didn't help that we had a couple key injuries but we were happy to be here. I wish it would have been closer but I was awfully proud of our guys."

Hanover was hit bhy a lingering elbow injury to Heartland Conference Defensive Player of the Year Kyle Treber earlier in the week and a back injury to All-HCAC defensive lineman Devonte Hardiman. Adding to the setbacks quarterback Noah Wezensky had sustained a knee injury and was officially ruled out Friday afternoon, putting the Panthers in a tight spot and making adjustments to the game plan.

The three were certainly missed come game time when Mount Union went to work quickly on its first drive, striking on a 17-yard pass from D'Angelo Fulford to Derrick Harvey that was followed by a successful extra point by Cory Bennett. The next two drives saw Hanover's defense put itself in position to make stops and keep the Purple Raiders out of the end zone. But two key penalties kept Mount on the field to cash in.

With a fourth down looming on back-to-back drives, two unsportsmanlike conduct penalties allowed Mount to sustain drives and score. Josh Petruccelli busted up the middle for a two-yard score and Fulford again found Harvey, this time on a 10-yard pass. The Purple Raiders led 21-0 with 3:06 left in the first quarter

"We gave them two penalties on third downs that extended drives and gave them 14 points," Theobald said of the first period. "To beat the machine you've got to play perfect and that's what they are, a machine. This whole Mount program is just special. We had some stuff we wanted to try and do but their offense just really made things challenging for our defense."

Hanover managed to strike inside the red zone in the final minute of the first quarter for its first score when a punt return was fumbled and recovered by Ross Eckert. After a one-yard run by Shawn Coane, A.J. Breit — who replaced Wezensky at quarterback — hit Taylor Bleistein for a 15-yard touchdown pass that was followed by Austin Steurer's extra point to trim the deficit to 21-7.

The momentum didn't last long, however, and the Purple Raiders came back with a vengeance, using a 27-0 surge to span the second and third quarters.

Harvey caught his third touchdown pass of the afternoon from Fulford after the Hanover score and Petruccelli scored on runs of 55 yards and 5 yards as Mount led 41-7 at halftime. Justin Hill, the nation's leading receiver, who had more than 100 yards in the first half, broke through in the third quarter with an 11-yard grab on a throw from Fulford, pushing the margin to 48-7.

At 0-11, Bengals set club record for futility in 16-10 loss to Steelers

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI — Even in the lost decades, no Bengals team has been as bad as this one.

A 16-10 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday dropped Cincinnati to 0-11, a mark unmatched in franchise history. No Bengals team had started worse than 0-10 or lost more than 10 games in a row.

Coach Zac Taylor's first team has become the measuring stick for futility moving forward.

"It's just defeating to lose, period," Taylor said. "I don't really care about the stats or the records. When you're competitive and you've put everything you've got into it, to lose is the worst feeling there is."

It's the only one they've known all season.

The Bengals are now in solid position for the first pick in the draft, holding a two-game lead over the next-worst teams. The question is how long they stick with struggling rookie quarterback Ryan Finley and let the losses pile up.

Finley had another subpar game Sunday. He fumbled twice on sacks, the last one allowing the Steelers to close out the game. In his third career start, he had two of his best moments, completing a 47-yard pass to Tyler Boyd and a 15-yarder for a touchdown to Boyd. In the first two games, his longest completion was 24 yards.

But there wasn't much after those two throws. Finley finished 12 of 26 for 192 yards with four sacks and a passer rating of 84.1. In his three starts, Finley has thrown two interceptions, including a pick-6, and lost three fumbles. He has completed only 47 percent of his passes for 474 yards.

The Bengals started looking toward next year when they benched Andy Dalton after an 0-8 start to see how Finley might fit in their long-term plans. Their best chance to avoid an 0-16 season is to go back to Dalton, although Taylor said after the game he's not inclined to make a switch at this point.

"Right now, Ryan's our quarterback," Taylor said. "It's not something I even think about."

The record-setting loss came against a team Cincinnati has seldom beaten in the last decade.

Pittsburgh (6-5) has won 10 straight in the Ohio River rivalry, including an 18-16 victory in the first round of the 2015 season playoffs at Paul Brown Stadium. Pittsburgh has won 13 of 14 and 18 of 21, including seven in a row in Cincinnati.

If the Bengals were ever going to beat the Steelers, this was their chance. Pittsburgh came in missing three key players in an offense hollowed out by injuries.

Center Maurkice Pouncey served the first of his two-game suspension for his role in a melee in Cleveland, where Myles Garrett ripped off quarterback Mason Rudolph's helmet and clubbed him with it. Also, receiver JuJu Smith-Schuster was out with a concussion and running back James Conner had a shoulder injury from the Cleveland game.

The Bengals led 7-3 at halftime — only the third time this season they've been ahead at the midpoint — but let another one slip away. Third-string quarterback Devlin "Duck" Hodges took over in the third quarter and threw a 79-yard touchdown pass. The Steelers forced a pair of fumbles and held on.

"That's the (10th) time in a row the Steelers have beaten us," said Boyd, who had a touchdown and a fumble. "It hurts even more."

Cubs pick up eight wins in two days

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's wrestling team had a good weekend, picking up eight dual meet wins over two days to remain unbeaten on the season.

The Cubs won three matches during the Friday Night Duals at Switzerland County, knocking off Salem 63-18, Greensburg 66-15 and host Switzerland 60-16.

"We had several kids go 3-0 tonight and our younger guys are really looking sharp," Madison coach Tyson Skinner said. "I was very impressed by Kelsey (Bilz), Louis (Humes), Dalton (Berry) and (Dylan) Fulton. Kelsey had three dominating wins by pin tonight and Louis, in his first ever varsity wrestling match in his life, got two big come from behind wins by pins."

After a quick turnaround, Madison motored to Bedford North Lawrence on Saturday and picked up five more wins, beating New Albany 51-21, North Harrison 72-6, Silver Creek 75-0, Forest Park 60-15 and Bedford North Lawrence 46-30.

Noah Burkhardt (120 pounds), Jacob McRoberts (126), Emmett Willhite (132), Mason Long (152), Van Skinner (170), Dalton Berry (182), and Dylan Fulton (285) each went 5-0 for the Cubs. Tazman Shipley and Louis Humes, both at 145, each won JV matches.

"I am very impressed by how this team has come together to support each other. They really feed off of each other," Tyson Skinner said. "We had several of our guys pull out some gutsy performances today."

Madison, now 9-0 on the season, heads to Providence on Tuesday for a dual meet. The Cubs then host Batesville on Tuesday, Dec. 3.

Tyrese Maxey scores 21 points, No. 9 Kentucky routs Lamar 81-56

By KEITH TAYLOR
Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Tyrese Maxey had a breakout performance in Kentucky's season-opener and it took five games for the freshman guard to duplicate the outing against Michigan State.

Maxey scored 21 points — five shy of his career high — and the Wildcats made a season-high 10 3-pointers in an 81-56 victory over Lamar on Sunday night.

The freshman guard made a career-high four 3-pointers, surpassing three he made in the Wildcats' opening victory over Michigan State.

Since that time, Maxey, who scored 26 points in the the opener against the Spartans in the Champions Classic, has been building his own confidence, especially behind the scenes.

"I'm confident in myself," he said. "I feel like I'm going to make the next (shot) no matter if I miss. I've put in too much work to have that same kind of thought process after a miss. Every time I shoot, I think it's going in."

Ashton Hagans added 15 points for Kentucky (5-1). Immanuel Quickley had 11, and Nick Richards added 10 points, 13 rebounds and seven blocks. Davion Buster led Lamar (4-2) with 19 points.

Kentucky opened and closed the first half in impressive fashion. The Wildcats raced to a 15-0 lead and closed with a 22-2 run. The scoring spree came after the Cardinals tied it 19 with 8:52 remaining.

"We played better today," Calipari said. "(We did) a lot of good stuff today. A lot of good stuff. Of the teams we've played, other than Michigan State, this team was as good as any of them, if not better than most of them or all of them. We played better."

Maxey sparked the decisive spree with four 3-pointers and led the Wildcats with 12 points in the half. Lamar managed just one field goal in the final 8 minutes. Calipari said Maxey's treys "stretched the game out."

"Like, those baskets (were) like bang, bang, bang," Calipari said. "He knows, if it's in transition, he can take it. Like, if we throw it ahead and he's open in transition, don't drive it, just shoot that ball."

Avery Sullivan added 11 for the Cardinals, and followed with 11 and T.J. Atwood added 10.

MEMPHIS CONNECTION

Lamar coach Tic Price coached at Memphis for two seasons from 1997-99 and was replaced by Calipari. Price went 30-27 in two seasons, while Calipari compiled a 214-68 record in his nine-year tenure with the Tigers.

BIG PICTURE

Kentucky: The Wildcats have struggled from the 3-point line this season and had made just 19 in the first five games, including seven in the past two contests. Kentucky surpassed that mark with seven 3-pointers in the first half against the Cardinals. Kentucky made it hard for Lamar in the paint and had 13 blocks, with Richards and EJ Montgomery combining for 10 of those.

"I liked the fact that we blocked shots today," Calipari said. "And I told the guys, how are we not blocking shots? We should be one of those teams in our league."

Lamar: The Cardinals are in the midst of four straight road games, including three in a seven-day span. Lamar returns home on Dec. 7 and will take on Rice, before closing the calendar year with three road games. Lamar fell to 0-4 overall against the Wildcats. The Cardinals shot just 33% from the field and made just 21 of 64 field goals.

POLL IMPLICATIONS

Kentucky has racked up three straight victories, including two straight blowouts, since a 67-64 loss to Evansville on Nov. 12. The Wildcats figure to remain No. 9.

Kentucky: Hosts Alabama-Birmingham on Friday night.

Panthers win two at Webster Classic

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover College men's basketball picked up a pair of wins over the weekend to win the Webster Classic in St. Louis, Missouri.

The Panthers whipped Westminster (Mo.) 91-57 in the opener on Friday, then pulled away to beat host Webster 65-58 on Saturday.

Hanover pulled out to 43-26 lead at the half and never looked back in the victory over Westminster.

Five Panthers reached double-digits in scoring in the game, led by Mark Albers with 16 points. Logan Ratts had 13 points, Isaac Hibbard and Blake Robertson scored 11 each and Connor Washburn had 10 off the bench.

Hibbard recorded a line of 17 points, eight rebounds and four assists to lead the Panthers in the win over Webster. Robertson added 16 points, five rebounds and five steals and Washburn scored 12 points off the bench.

Hanover, now 4-0 on the season, returns to action on Wednesday, Dec. 4 when the Panthers host Franklin in their Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference season opener.

Women fall at Spalding

Spalding outscored Hanover by 10 in the fourth quarter and pulled away for a 76-62 win in women's basketball Friday in Louisville.

Hanover found itself trailing 22-16 after the first quarter and 57-53 headed into the final frame. The Golden Eagles won the fourth 19-9 to win the game going away.

Alexis Nall had an impressive double-double of 20 points and 13 rebounds to lead Hanover while Kristin Mills scored 11 points and Savannah Courtney scored 10.

Hanover, now 1-2 on the season, travels to Centre (Ky.) on Saturday at Danville.

Patterson leads Michigan past Indiana

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Shea Patterson needed almost two full seasons to find his groove at Michigan.

Now, he's hard to beat.

Patterson threw for 366 yards and five touchdowns, leading the 12th-ranked Wolverines to their fourth straight victory — 39-14 over Indiana on Saturday.

Over the past two weeks, Patterson has thrown nine touchdowns passes. Over the last three games, he has 12 touchdown passes and one interception.

And the resurgent Wolverines (9-2, 6-2 Big Ten) are making it look easy, too. They've won seven of eight, the last four by margins of 25 or more, and extended their winning streak over the Hoosiers to 24 games.

But as well as Patterson has played recently, he couldn't do it without some help from his receivers.

Nico Collins turned three of his six receptions into scores, a career high, and had a career-best 165 yards. Donovan Peoples-Jones had five catches for 73 yards and scored on a spectacular, spinning 11-yard TD catch in the first half. Giles Jackson's only catch went for 50 yards and Ronnie Bell caught a 6-yard TD catch, the first of his career.

It was that kind of day for the Wolverines.

"They've got size and a lot of speed to go along with that," Indiana coach Tom Allen said. "But we've got to win some of those one-on-one match-ups. They were just better than us today."

Michigan's defense was just as impressive.

After giving up 1-yard touchdown runs in the first half to Steve Scott III and Peyton Ramsey, the Wolverines didn't allow another score.

The Hoosiers (7-4, 4-4) weren't the same after Ramsey appeared to take a hard shot to the midsection. The Hoosiers have lost two straight since clinching their first winning season in 12 years.

•Hanover

The Panthers again used their defense to create a score, this time with 5:26 left in the third quarter. Carson Plessinger forced Mount's third fumble — on a run by DeAndre Parker — that was recovered at the four-yard line and ran back by senior Dakota Manion for a touchdown. Hanover trailed 48-14 after Steurer's second extra point.

"It's all about just staying on this team and playing our game even with our backs up against the wall," Manion said. "No matter what the scoreboard said, it was still 0-0 in my mind and that's what I tried to preach to our guys. We just kept going and we weren't going to stop hitting until the game was over."

Mount Union finished the game with three more scores, including an 84-yard kick-off return by K.J. Redmon immediately after Manion's touchdown. The final score, a 27-yard pass from Braxton Plunk to Jordan Lee, put an exclamation mark on the day for the Purple Raiders early in the fourth quarter en route to the 65-14 win.

Altogether, the Purple Raiders showed why their offense ranks among the top two in the nation, totaling 568 yards total offense.

Fulford, who leads the nation in pass efficiency, dazzled with 323 yards and four touchdowns on 21-of-28 passing. Hill, his top target, collected 175 yards and a score on 10 catches while Harvey's three touchdowns paired with 54 yards and Wayne Ruby brought down five catches and 56 yards.

Petruccelli finished the day with 118 yards on 15 carries and three scores and caught 3 passes for 37 yards.

Perhaps even more impressive though was a Mount defense that suffocated Hanover to season lows in every offensive category, allowing the Panthers just 80 total yards on 57 plays.

Breit finished 9-of-23 passing for 88 yards with his touchdown pass to Bleistein, who was the top target with 52 yards on three catches. In the rushing department, the Panthers were devastated for a minus-11 rushing yards including HCAC Offensive Player of the Year Shawn Coane being held to seven yards on 13 carries.

Walt Ballinger and Jake Namisnak led Hanover with 10 yards each on the ground.

"I thought we might be able to run the ball a little better than what we did but we had an all-conference right tackle come out with an injury and we had two freshmen on the offensive line," Theobald said. "I mean they're just good, they know us just as well as we know ourselves. Had we had Noah (Wezensky) we would have been able to be more balanced but I thought A.J. stepped in and gave us his best. We knew what we were getting into. They're just really good."

Hanover finishes the season with a 9-2 mark and an unblemished 7-0 record in the HCAC that led to the school's second-straight conference championship and back-to-back automatic bids to the NCAA Division III Playoffs.

Mount Union (11-0) faces No. 6 North Central (Ill.) in the second round next Saturday after the Cardinals defeated fellow Indiana school Wabash 51-15 in the first round this past weekend.

•Madison

Salem's Hope Tomlinson aided Madison's comeback by hitting just one of two free throws on the other end, but the Cubs once again turned the ball over and another free throw by Callie Backherms pushed the lead to nine.

Another Madison turnover and two free throw by Karly Sweeney with 52 seconds to go all but ended the comeback.

"(Salem) pressed us nearly the entire time and we broke it the entire game, other than the third quarter," Bowyer said. "Hat's off to them, they're a great team. They've got good shooters, good drivers, good guards and they know how to play the game. We knew what kind of team we were going up against, but we also showed what kind of team that we can be. We get four quarters together, it's a ballgame."

Nutley, the Cubs' 6-foot-1 junior all-star candidate, faced double teams all night but still managed to scored 17 points and pull down 12 rebounds while dishing out four assists. Perry had 15 points while Jay came off the bench to score 11.

Salem put five players in double figures with Tomlinson's 15 points leading the way. Sweeney scored 14 points, Backherms had 13 and Natalie Noel and Abigail Ratts had 11 points each for the Lions, who then moved up to No. 1 in the ICGSA Poll issued Sunday night.

Both teams shot similar percentages from the floor with Salem hitting 45% (20-of-44) and Madison 41% (20-of-49) and each committed 19 turnovers. The Lions' seven 3-pointers — to just three by the Cubs — and a 21-16 advantage in free throws were the difference.

Madison's next game is the annual Turkey Shootout on Wednesday against rival Southwestern. The Rebels come into the game red-hot, having won five in a row.

Rebels win 5th-straight

Southwestern ran its win streak to five games with a 52-41 win at South Dearborn in girls basketball on Saturday.

The Rebels, who haven't lost since their season-opener, led just 26-24 at halftime, but blew open the game with a 14-4 third-quarter run. Southwestern then held on from there.

Ellie Foley, Bella Marcum and Isabel Brooks each scored 11 points to lead Southwestern while Ashton Goode scored 10.

Southwestern, now 5-1 on the season, is off to its best start since the 2011-12 campaign. The Rebels host Madison in the annual Turkey Shootout on Wednesday.

Pacers score two wins

Switzerland County girls basketball picked up a pair of wins over the weekend.

The Pacers traveled to Rising Sun on Friday and scored a 56-22 non-conference win. Switzerland then knocked off Franklin County 51-41 at home on Saturday.

Josie Meyer scored a career-high 16 points and grabbed eight rebounds in the Pacers' win over Rising Sun. Kyah Chase added a career-high of her own with 14 points, eight rebounds and four steals and Jessie Duvall had nine points and six rebounds. Maddie Duvall and Jaden Harrell each added seven points and Keirstan Oeffinger had three points. Harrell also had 12 rebounds.

Senior Aleiah Thomas returned from injury to score 11 points and grab six rebounds in the Pacers' win over Franklin County. Jessie Duvall had 10 points, five rebounds and five assists, Chase had eight points and six rebounds, Maddie Duvall had seven points and five rebounds, Meyer had six points, Oeffinger scored five and Harrell had four points and five rebounds.

Switzerland, now 4-1 on the season, hosts sectional foe North Decatur on Wednesday.

BRIDGE

BIDDING YOUR WAY ALONG THE PATH

Mike Lawrence, a three-time Bermuda Bowl world team champion, has written many excellent books. His latest, "Insights on Bridge, Moments in Bidding Book 1" (Baron Barclay Bridge Supplies), has an unusual format. Lawrence discusses 103(!) situations, usually the bidding of the partnership's hands, but occasionally of one hand. Each chapter ends with a postmortem.

Look at the North hand and the auction. What should North do now?

In this deal, North has a weak hand and a long suit. Partner seems to be in trouble. Should North bid his suit or let partner stew?

Lawrence explains why North should pass. West's one-no-trump showed something in hearts, which was not lost on South. He also knew North was weak and there was a risk that he would get doubled. North holds the diamond king, more than he might have had.

Note that two spades doubled would definitely go down two, and can be taken down three. What happens in two hearts doubled, though?

At the table, West led the spade jack. Declarer won with his ace, played a diamond to the king, took his other two diamond winners and ruffed his last diamond on the board. Yes, he had to concede three trumps and two clubs, but that was still plus 470 instead of minus 300 or 500 in two spades doubled.

Lawrence concludes by discussing a different sequence: One club by East, one heart by South, pass by West and North, double by East, pass by South and West. Now North should run to one spade because South has not promised long, strong hearts.

Fretting over financial friction

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I'm very upset about my brother and my sister-in-law's friction over finances. My brother and I are very close. I'm single and spend a lot of time with them and their two kids.

They fight about money often. It's mostly centered on their mortgage. My brother thinks they should pay extra every month in an effort to pay off the house faster. He wants the peace of mind of ownership and not having debt. My sister-in-law thinks that's a mistake because they need the money now and get to enjoy the tax write-off the mortgage brings. She also thinks they could invest that money and have a better return from the stock market rather than tie up that money in the house. My brother argues he would rather pay off the house than pay for it over and over again with all of those interest payments. He doubts they'd have the discipline to invest that money, but paying extra on the mortgage is a forced savings.

I've rented all my life and don't know much about mortgages, but I've researched this a bit, and there are logical arguments on both fronts. Besides, I certainly don't want to take a side.

I worry that these arguments are going to affect the kids. While the kids are still pretty young, 7 and 9, the bickering is constant. They fight about every nickel that's spent.

When there's no money talk, they're great together. They love each other very much. They just have such opposing views on handling money. They're not rich, but they also don't want for anything. They generally have the same lifestyle expectations; neither is a "big spender" or wasting a lot of money.

While this is not my problem per se, I'm wondering how I can help. — Avoiding Financial Fights

Dear Avoiding Financial Fights: You're correct that fighting in front of children is never good. So getting on the same page in regards to finances would be great. The problem is neither one of them wrote to me; you did. And as close as you are to your brother, getting in the middle of his marriage and finances isn't a good idea. The next time they argue over money, you might suggest that they consult with a financial planner.

Dear Annie: I have a message for all of the grandparents who complain about their grandchildren not thanking them for gifts. You raised those grandkids' parents. Did you teach them to thank people who give them gifts? I didn't raise my stepchildren, and they were never taught to show that kind of appreciation. Consequently, they haven't taught their own children to say thank you.

My nieces were raised as I was: to write thank-you notes from the time they were old enough to print. I kept every thank-you, every birthday card, every note and drawing they ever gave to me up through their young adulthood. They're now both in their 40s, and last year, I sent them each a package with all of those treasures. They were so thrilled that a) I had kept everything and b) they had a chance to read their own sweet youthful notes.

One of my nieces has a little girl, and she's teaching her those two really important words: "Thank you." It's up to each generation to teach the next the art of appreciation and manners. — A Happy Auntie

Dear Happy Auntie: As my grandmother used to say, "More is caught than taught." You are 100% correct that teaching kids manners starts with their parents.
